

Garden of Dreams

by Aiden Kim

Some desires and wishes that are planted in my dream garden are world peace, everyone's health, and fairness. For example, in today's world, there is a lot of violence, crime, and bullying. One example of bad things happening today is when people bully kids harshly, whether it be physically or mentally. A lot of violence and crime are going around in many cities. This is why I want this to be in my dream garden. I want everybody to be safe and not harmed, like from bullying or violence. I want the world to be peaceful and not dangerous. I do not want fighting or people saying mean words to others. This shows that world peace is an important way to improve everyone's life.

Secondly, I want everyone to be healthy and safe. I do not want anyone getting sick or getting hurt. This way, the chance of dying will decrease.

Lastly, I want fairness and equality. Many people are getting discriminated against or getting excluded, just because of their skin color or their race. Also, many people are getting judged by their culture and accent. This shows why I want people to be nice and include others. In other words, I do not want them to be prejudiced, racist or exclusionary. To sum it all up, important dreams planted in my garden are fairness, world peace, and everyone to be healthy and safe.
